NEW YORK CENTRAL SHOWS EXPANSION

Gross Earnings for April Helped Lift Pressure on Stock Market.

FLUCTUATIONS UNCERTAIN

Operations at Minimum and Professional Element in the Dealings.

NEW YORK, May S .- Operations in and the feeble and uncertain fluctuations in prices were significant of the lack of a conviction prevalent.

The dealings were in the hands of a narrow professional class and could not be said to represent anything more than shifting sentiment and efnot be said to represent anything more than shifting sentiment and efforts to detect a prevalent tendency in the course of prices that might be followed. An early advance in a few stocks attracted no important following, and the signs of weakness in New York Central seemed to be due to further selling, prompted by consideration of the wide margir, below the dividend requirement shown by the net earnings of the company for the first quarter of the year. The pressure on the stock was lifted to some extent after the publication of the gross earnings statement for April, which showed an expansion of over 20 per cent, over the earnings for April last year. Such a rate of increase, if maintained, would be sufficient to offset even such a large growth in operating expenses as was made in the March quarter, and so would tend to preserve the integrity of the fund available for dividends. Great importance was attached to the moderating weather in the Northwest, as giving promise of opportunity to effect the beisted planting of spring wheat in time to leave good opportunities for a harvest.

Conditions in the money market underwent little change, although circumstances point to declining resources of the banks.
